It starts with a simple idea: massive cubes of clay, half a meter high. The sculptures of Mexican artist Bosco Sodi (*1970 in Mexico City), cubes of fired clay stacked in high columns, ought to have exploded while being fired due to the extreme heat released in the material: sand, earth, and water.

The massive fired-clay cube sculptures of Mexican artist Bosco Sodi (born 1970) resemble the proportions of the human body and at the same time suggest an architecture reduced to the essential.

Denkt man an „Künstler“, so denkt man mithin zuallererst an Musiker oder Maler, Bildhauer oder Autoren, Schauspieler oder Akrobaten. Der Mexikaner Bosco Sodi ist auch Künstler, obwohl er sich mit seiner Kunst so gar nicht in die klischeehafte Aufreihung einsortieren lässt.
