

Download China Government Change

Under China's current Constitution, the NPC is structured as a unicameral legislature, with the power to legislate, the power to oversee the operations of the government, and the power to elect the major officials of state.

China in Transition participates in the intellectual developments by focusing on social, political and cultural change in the China of the 1990s and beyond. Drawing on new research from scholars in Asia, Australia, North America and Europe, this series is invaluable in monitoring reform and interpreting the consequences for China, its neighbours and the West.

Furthermore, most Chinese citizens believe their actions as individuals can help combat climate change, although the government is still seen as the entity most responsible for dealing with climate change. If the government does take action, fiscal and taxation policies are seen as potentially effective.

China is preparing to make major changes to fiscal policy, and the effects on its economy and markets could be significant. Here's what we're watching. Here's what we're watching.

The China Government Bond 10Y is expected to trade at 3.09 percent by the end of this quarter, according to Trading Economics global macro models and analysts expectations.

EU-China Roadmap on Energy Cooperation in 2016, and the present Statement, the EU and China commit to significantly intensify their political, technical, economic and scientific cooperation on climate change

China is ruled by a communist government. This government has been in place since 1949. Communism in China, and in communist governments across the world, strives for equality among its citizens in economy and class.

At China Change, a few dedicated staff bring you information about human rights, rule of law, and civil society in China. We want to help you understand aspects of China's political landscape that are the most censored and least understood. We are a 501(c)(3) organization, and your contribution is tax-deductible.

The People's Republic of China has been ruled by the Communist Party since 1949 when it won the Chinese Civil War by overthrowing the Nationalist government.

China will allow all forms of capital to equally compete in the financial market through ease of market access, Chinese Premier Li Keqiang said on Friday.

Other Files :