Today's Scripture Reading: 2 Samuel 17: 15-29; Psalm 3; Psalm 63, 2 Samuel 18: 1 through 19:30 My heart breaks for King David. His son; not his friend, not a co-worker, but his son—flesh of his flesh and blood of his blood betrayed him and was trying to kill him. I had my share of trials when...

From the Heart of a Parent: On Finding Out Our Child Would Have Down Syndrome July 28, 2016 by AnchorAdmin 0 0 During our 16 week ultrasound we found out we were having a little girl.

From the heart of the parent who writes this blog today, my hope is for all families to communicate this openly so that our children will come to us with their joys as well as their struggles. We have all made mistakes, learn from them and talk about them with your children. Listen to your children when they come to you in delight, and when they come to you with the struggles, even if it is not comfortable for you.

Parenting from the Heart is the culmination of my life lessons with my kids, research, fun activities we've done! What IS Parenting from the Heart? Having studied development psychology during my undergrad, my parenting can best be defined as influenced by a little bit of research, a bit of family tradition, a bit of instinct, and a whole lot of love.

Bishops get a lot of unsolicited mail from strangers, some of it pleasant, some of it much less so. It goes with the job. But every once in a while a letter comes in that's worth sharing with a wider audience.
