A fascinating account of the recurring fights over Tasmania's natural resources that have torn its people apart for three decades, this is a history of bitter conflicts over Tasmania's natural resources between the State government and big business on the one hand and the environmental movement on

Tasmania's old-growth forests, its wild, untamed rivers and its remote, rugged mountain peaks are etched in the minds of most Australians but these wilderness areas have been the focus of bitter conflict between government, big business and environmentalists for the past 30 years.

Wilderness is as much a state of mind as it is a physical reality. Humankind needs wilderness for peace of mind, for release and to make sense of the largely artificial world it has created for itself US philosopher Richard Jeffrey once said: "The hours when the mind is absorbed by beauty are the
